Children aged 0-12 years are enchanted by animated films, with their vibrant colors and whimsical stories capturing young imaginations. Teenagers, aged 13-18 years, gravitate towards young adult fiction, relishing in the relatable coming-of-age themes and adventurous plots. Young adults, between 19-25 years, often prefer the adrenaline rush of action and adventure genres, finding excitement in the daring exploits and high stakes. Adults aged 26-35 years are drawn to science fiction, enjoying the speculative and futuristic elements that challenge their perceptions of reality. Those in the 36-45 year age range favor mystery and thriller genres, appreciating the suspense and intellectual stimulation. Historical fiction captivates the 46-55 year age group, who enjoy exploring past eras and the rich tapestry of historical narratives. Genres like biographies hold a special place for the 56-65 year olds, offering inspiring real-life stories and profound insights. Finally, individuals aged 66 and older often love to read classics, finding comfort in the timeless tales and enduring literary works.